

NILE VET

Vocational English Teaching

'I will use the methods and ideas in my work, and I will look at aspects of my work in a different way.'

With the greater mobility of workers throughout Europe, English is becoming increasingly important for students in a range of vocations. Each trade requires specific task- and subject-related language.

NILE has developed a series of programmes which integrate the hands-on orientation of learning in vocational education into our approach to English teaching. Combining language development with work placements and trade visits, NILE VET offers you a specialist professional development opportunity whether you are a student or teacher.

'I never spoke so much English!'

The experience of using English in the workplace alongside studying the language enables you to see the direct application of what you are learning. A VET course will motivate you to develop your language ability, develop relationships with your colleagues and increase your employment and mobility opportunities.

'The plan took into consideration our needs, tutors were well prepared and the methods were helpful.'

NILE Vocational English courses for Teachers and for Learners are tailored to the nature of your chosen professional subject specialism. Our courses include project work, simulations, problem-based learning, discovery-oriented activities and role-plays, building a strong connection between the content of your chosen field, the future job requirements and the language you need to fulfil them.

*'Good teachers and a good location, good lessons.
I had only positive experiences.'*

Based in the city of Norwich, and with over 20 years' experience, NILE has the premises, resources, staff expertise and network to offer the balance between language development, work placements and social and cultural activities that is right for you.

'The key things I am taking away from this course are new ideas; how to organise, how to prepare my lessons.'

NILE offers courses and qualifications all year round for English language teachers and trainers at every stage of their ELT careers, both face-to-face and online, in the UK and overseas. Learn more at www.nile-elt.com
